Tour Itinerary

: Pick up from Edinburgh Hotel

Driver will meet you at the hotel in the morning (at pre-set time)

: Loch Lomond (Luss Village)

Enjoy the quintessential Loch Lomond, combining the charm of the historic village of Luss with unique wildlife encounters, and a panoramic view of serene natural beauty.

: Rest and be Thankful Viewpoint

"Rest and Be Thankful" primarily refers to a famous, steep mountain pass in Argyll, Scotland, named because travellers paused here to rest and give thanks for safely reaching the summit of the challenging climb, a tradition continuing at the viewpoint overlooking the old military road built by General Wade.

: Inveraray Castle

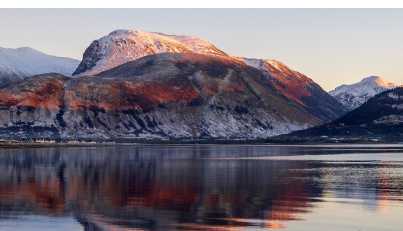

Inveraray Castle, located on the western shore of Loch Fyne in Scotland, is a stunning example of Scottish baronial architecture. Built in the 18th century, it serves as the ancestral home of the Duke of Argyll. The castle features exquisite gardens and picturesque grounds, perfect for leisurely strolls.

: Kilchurn Castle

Kilchurn Castle, nestled at the northeast end of Loch Awe in Scotland, is a striking ruin that embodies the romantic allure of the Scottish Highlands. Originally built in the 15th century, it served as a stronghold for the MacKenzie clan and later became the seat of the Campbells.

: Glencoe (Driving through Rannoch Moor)

Rannoch Moor, often described as one of the last true wildernesses in Britain, served as a significant filming location for the Harry Potter film series, primarily representing the desolate, wild landscapes through which the Hogwarts Express travels.

Iconic Scenes Filmed at Rannoch Moor

- The Death Eater Ambush (Deathly Hallows: Part 1): This is the most famous scene associated with the moor. In this sequence, Death Eaters board and search the Hogwarts Express while it is traveling across the bleak, boggy landscape.
- Dementor Attack (Prisoner of Azkaban): Some sources also note the moor's atmosphere was used to depict the landscape during the Dementor attack on the train in the third film.

- Horcrux Journey (Deathly Hallows: Part 1): The vast, marshy expanse provided a backdrop for Harry, Ron, and Hermione’s treacherous journey through the wilderness.

: Three Sisters of Glencoe

The Three Sisters of Glencoe are three iconic, steeply-sided mountain ridges located in the Glen Coe valley of the Scottish Highlands. The individual ridges, which are part of the larger Bidean nam Bian mountain massif, are named Beinn Fhada (Long Hill), Gearr Aonach (Short Ridge), and Aonach Dubh (Black Ridge). For the photo opportunity and test of Scottish Highland explore driver will stop at the Three Sisters of Glencoe.

: Kilmahog

In the heart of the Trossachs, we will stop here to hand feed our much loved 'Highland Cows'.

: The Iconic Kelpies

The Iconic Kelpies are a pair of monumental 30-meter-tall (98 ft) steel horse-head sculptures located in The Helix park, between Falkirk and Grangemouth, in Central Scotland. They are the largest equine sculptures in the world, designed by Scottish sculptor Andy Scott to honor Scotland's horse-powered industrial heritage.
